A Continual Strain.

Many men and women are constantly subjected to what they commonly term "a continual strain" because of some financial or family trouble. It wears and distresses them both mentally and physically, affecting their nerves badly and bringing on liver and kidney ailments, with the attendant evils of constipation, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, low vitality and despondency. They cannot, as a rule, get rid of this "continual strain," but they can remedy its health destroying effects by taking frequent doses of Green's August Flower. It tones up the liver, stimulates the kidneys, insures healthy bodily functions, gives vim and spirit to one's whole being, and eventually dispels the physical or mental distress caused by that "continual strain." Trial bottle of August Flower, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists.—W. T. Brooks.

Healthy Mothers.

Mothers should always keep in good bodily health. They owe it to their children. Yet it is no unusual sight to see a mother, with babe in arms, coughing violently and exhibiting all the symptoms of a consumptive tendency. And why should this dangerous condition exist, dangerous alike to mother and child, when Dr. Boesche's German Syrup would put a stop to it at once? No mother should be without this old and tried remedy in the house—for its timely use will promptly cure any lung, throat or bronchial trouble in herself or her children. The worst cough or cold can be speedily cured by German Syrup; so can hoarseness and congestion of the bronchial tubes. It makes expectoration easy, and gives instant relief and refreshing rest to the cough-racked consumptive. New trial bottles, 25c; large size 75c. At all druggists.—W. T. Brooks.

IDEAL WORSE THAN SHATTERED

"And have you an ideal man, Miss Glady?"
"I had an ideal, but he—"
"Your ideal has been shattered."
"Not exactly shattered, but he is broke."—Rochester Times-Democrat.

Like the Flea.

The woman who travels all around is very much like a flea;
She doesn't eat in one place, but takes
A bite where she happens to be.
—Yonkers Statesman.

Poor Place for Poets.

Poet—I'm going to leave this offensively practical country. It's no place for poets.

Friend—What's happened?
Poet—Yesterday I visited all the newspaper offices I could find in a suburban town, and at last succeeded in persuading an editor to take a poem at 50 cents. Well, I'd hardly reached the curbstone before I was arrested by the authorities for peddling goods without a license.—N. Y. Weekly.

The City's Pitfalls.

Idle Tim—Phew! Never had such a narrow escape in all the years I've been trampin'. These 'ere big cities is full o' pitfalls for the unwary.

Tattered Tom—What happened ye?
Idle Tom—I went into that big buildin', to tell me tale of woe, and where d'ye think I found meself? It was an employment office—an' 20 different persons offered me work afore I could get out.—N. Y. Weekly.

Unexpected.

The master was explaining the meaning of the word "recuperate."
"Now, Willie," he said, "if your father worked hard all day he would be tired and worn out, wouldn't he?"
"Yess'r."

"Then when evening comes, and his work is over for the day, what does he do?"
"That's what mother wants to know."
—Cassell's Saturday Journal.

Passing of the Pastor.

She had a stall at the bazar
And mused: "What will the pastor buy?"
With eyes that seemed to gaze afar
The cashless pastor passed her by.
—Judge.

ALAS, TOO TRUE.

Teacher—Johnnie, name a bird that is now extinct.
Johnnie—Our canary. The cat exterminated him.—St. Louis Republic.

To Settle a Bet.

"Why, I gave you a piece of cake yesterday," said the young housekeeper.

"Yes, ma'am," replied Weary Willie, "but I want another chunk to settle a bet."

"To settle a bet?"
"Yes, ma'am. I told me partner out dore dat it was cake, but he says it's a hunk o' concrete."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

A Delicate Morsel.

A little friend of mine said to his mother one day: "Mamma, how fat Amelia has grown."

"Yes," said his mother; "but don't say 'fat,' dear; say 'stout.'"

At the dinner table the next day my little friend was asked if he would have some lean meat.

"No, thank you," said he, "I'll take some stout meat."—Little Chronicle.

Calling It.

"Why is Miss Charity down on the editor?"

"Why, he wrote that whenever a poor family needed help it found her a friend indeed!"

"Oh, yes, and the compositor made it 'friend indeed.'"—Houston Post.

A Fine Angler.

Madge—In what way is she such a clever girl?
Marjorie—Well, she always knows how many times she can safely refuse a fellow's proposal without losing him altogether.—Judge.

Proof Positive.

Tommy—Ma, I guess pa knew what he was talking about the other day when he said Mr. Sniffkins was an old heathen and—

Ma—Why, Tommy! Mr. Sniffkins is one of the vestrymen of the church.

Tommy—I know, but the minister told us in Sunday school to-day that there'd be a collection for the heathen, and, sure enough, old Sniffkins came with a basket and took my penny.—Philadelphia Press.

Had Not Bothered Him.

Young Husband (laying down a comic paper)—All this tomfoolery about women's extravagance makes me tired. We have been married two months, and you haven't asked me for a cent.

Young Wife—Of course not. What would be the use of bothering you for every little thing I want, when it's so much easier to have the things charged.—N. Y. Weekly.

Nothing to Retract.

Mrs. Countershop (with an injured air)—You told me before we were married that you were the highest salaried clerk in the store.

Mr. Countershop (equally injured)—So I am. I'm two inches and a half higher than any other salaried clerk in the whole establishment. If you chose to imagine a hyphen between those two words, I'm not to blame for it, am I?—Chicago Tribune.

TAKE A LONG TIME.

Cholly—But in time you might learn to love me.
Pet—Ah! Life is too short.—Ally Sloper.

Bank That Didn't Fail.

In a strenuous faro bank
His all he trusted;
The bank is running still—
But he is busted.
—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Good Match.

Old Lady—Then you are not married?
Modern Miss—No, indeed. I am one of the bachelor girls you hear about so much nowadays—have a profession, rooms of my own, and dine at the club, you know.

Old Lady—Ah, I see. You must let me introduce you to my dear son, who lives with me. He is one of the old maid men, you know.—N. Y. Weekly.

Cause and Effect.

She—Your friend Stillman has such a sad, far-away look. I wonder why?

He—About two years ago he fell in love with a beautiful society belle, and—

She (interrupting)—Ah, the same old story. She handed him the frigid mitt.
He—No, on the contrary, she took pity on herself and married him.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Couldn't Fool Her.

Mrs. Boardman—What did those pies taste like which we had for dinner?

Mr. Boardman—Sawdust.
"Exactly! That accounts for it! I heard the boarding-house woman tell her husband to order some kindling wood, as she wanted to make some pies, for dinner."—Yonkers Statesman.

A Reliable Guest.

Proprietor—Seems to me you were rather careless to give the best room in the house to an utter stranger without baggage.

Hotel Clerk—Oh, he's all right. He's worth a million at least. He's here as defendant in a suit for breach of promise—damages to the plaintiff's injured heart, $200,000.—N. Y. Weekly.

By the Sad Sea.

The landlord of the Coral inn was showing the visitors through the building.

"And our sun parlors," he said, proudly, "are . . . any disease."

"How about love?" asked the visitors.

"Oh, we have moon parlors for that, you know."—Waukegan Sentinel.

Facing a Problem.

"Have you ever thought about Johnny's future career?" asked the boy's teacher. "He has decided talent as an elocutionist."

"I know it," replied Mr. Upjohn, "and I'm blest if I can decide whether I ought to develop it or try to whip it out of him."—Chicago Tribune.

Won't Let Him Alone.

She—You know it's not well for man to be alone.

He—No; it's not well for women to be alone, I suppose you think.—Yonkers Statesman.
